“ Hey mama, it's 2023 and I'm just now finding out about your passing. You'd been on my mind and I was reading our old Facebook messages & then boom! I miss you so much. I remember when we got pregnant and had our babies together in 2015. You'd always laugh cos you had jojo on my due date lol. I pray that the children are well & that your mother is doing alright. I remember that time ya came over to my house in 2020 and got the crystals and a reading. I still have that bracelet you never came and picked up. I'll put it away and cherish it for you ☐ I love you mama. Rest easy

“ I miss you so much. Thanksgiving is coming up and I can't see me celebrating. I remember that one year we had made up in our mind that we wasn't going to celebrate it anymore, but we both woke up and was immediately went to the grocery store. The way we moved in the kitchen, just talking, laughing, not stepping on anyone's toes, telling the other that they are doing something wrong or not putting enough of something in was beautiful in itself. We cooked so much food that year, just me and you, not to mention everything was superb. That was my favorite thanksgiving year since then and still is till this day. You will always be my baby, my little girl and I want you so bad beautie!

“ We gooo way back my girl ! You was the little sister I never had, even though we use to loose contact over the years as we got older we would randomly find each other and it was always nothing but love and I was guaranteed a good laugh and catch up like we ain't skipped a beat! What I always loved about you was you always said how you felt and didn't care what other people thought! You're definitely one of a kind & there will never be another like you ! I'm just blessed to have known you, I can hear your little raspy voice saying "you so chocolate and prettyy just like meee! you know we sisters fr" Lol!

Mann this isn't a goodbye, this is a see you later beautiful 💕

Love & miss you Sista 🍷.

Shakera, I had just thought of you and now I am just finding out you are no longer here. You took good care of my Grandfather and was always so sweet and respectful. You called me Mrs. Tonia so lovingly. I am sorry this happened. Sleep well
